Willow Privacy Policy

07042002 Inc. d/b/a Willow · Version of November 13, 2026

1. Introduction and Scope

> Summary: This policy explains what information Willow collects, why, who we share it with, and the choices you have. When a law firm uses Willow for its clients, the firm decides how that information is used and we act on its behalf. The summaries in these boxes are for convenience and are not part of the binding policy.

Effective date: [to be set on publication]. Last updated: [to be set on publication].

1.1 Who we are. This Privacy Policy is issued by 07042002 Inc., a Delaware corporation doing business as Willow ("Willow," "we," "us" or "our"). Willow provides a secure, web-based platform that estate planning attorneys and their clients use to store, organize, analyze, summarize and share copies of estate planning documents, to schedule consultations, and to coordinate the release of documents to designated people (the "Services").

1.2 Who this policy covers. This policy applies to personal information we process about:

- (a) Firms and their Authorized Users: law firms that subscribe to the Services, and the attorneys and staff they authorize to use them;
- (b) Members: individuals who hold a Willow account for their own estate planning, whether invited by a Firm or signed up directly, and whether or not documents have been added to it yet;
- (c) Designated Recipients and Fiduciaries: people a Member chooses to share documents with, and executors, personal representatives, trustees, agents under a power of attorney, health care agents, guardians and others in a similar legal role who request documents;
- (d) Prospective clients who book a consultation through a Firm's Willow booking page, or who submit a Firm's lead or intake form in Willow;
- (e) Visitors to willow-inc.com and our related websites, including people who sign up for updates or early access (such as our Founding 100 program), submit our investor interest or contact forms, or book a demonstration with us; and
- (f) Business contacts: attorneys, law firm staff and other professionals whom we contact, or who contact us, about Willow.

1.3 Our two roles. When a Firm uploads or manages information about its clients through the Services ("Firm Customer Data"), we process that information on the Firm's behalf and under its instructions, as a service provider or processor. The Firm's own privacy notice and its professional obligations, including attorney-client confidentiality, govern the Firm's use of that information. Questions about Firm Customer Data should go first to the Firm. For information we collect directly, such as account details of Members who sign up on their own, website and usage data, business contact information and billing information, Willow decides how the information is used and this policy governs.

1.4 Not a law firm. Willow is not a law firm and does not provide legal advice. Using the Services, booking a consultation or sending a message through Willow does not create an attorney-client relationship with Willow or with any Firm. Such a relationship forms only when you formally engage an attorney.

1.5 Related terms. This policy should be read together with the Willow Member Terms and the Willow Firm Subscription Agreement (including its Data Processing Addendum), but it is not part of those agreements. Capitalized terms not defined here have the meanings given in those agreements. If this policy conflicts with a Firm's signed agreement or Data Processing Addendum on how Firm Customer Data is handled, the signed agreement controls.

1.6 Who may use the Services. The Services are intended for individuals 18 years of age or older who reside in a U.S. state where Willow makes the Services available, as listed on our website (our "availability page").

2. Information We Collect

> Summary: We collect what you give us (your account details, your estate planning documents and your answers to check-ins and surveys), what Firms upload for their clients, what we need to verify people who request documents, limited data from the calendar, contacts and email accounts an attorney connects, payment details through our payment processor, and basic technical data about how the Services are used. The Willow apps use only the cookies they need to work. Our marketing website uses optional analytics only if you agree, and we do not use advertising cookies or targeted advertising anywhere.

2.1 Information you provide.

- (a) Account information: name, email address, telephone number, state of residence, password (stored only in hashed form by our authentication provider), multi-factor authentication settings, and the record of your acceptance of our terms and consents (what you agreed to, the date, your IP address and browser type). For Attorneys and Authorized Users, we also collect firm name, role, office address, jurisdictions of licensure and professional profile details shown on booking pages.
- (b) Estate planning content: copies of wills, trusts, powers of attorney, health care proxies and surrogate designations, living wills, HIPAA authorizations and related documents, together with supporting files a Member or Firm chooses to upload (for example insurance policies, deeds, account lists, school or medical records), notes, and instructions about who should receive which documents and when ("Access Instructions").
- (c) Information about other people: names, relationships, contact details and roles (such as executor, trustee, agent, guardian or beneficiary) of family members and other people named in a plan or designated to receive documents. If you provide information about another person, you confirm that you are permitted to do so.

- (d) Booking and intake information: name, email, telephone number, preferred time and any message a prospective client enters on a Firm's booking page, and the information a prospective client enters on a Firm's lead or intake form in Willow. That information goes to the Firm and is Firm Customer Data. Please do not include confidential details of your legal matter in a booking request.
- (e) Release and verification information: when someone requests documents after a Member's death or another release event the Member chose, we collect the requester's name, contact details, relationship to the Member, any note they add, and the information and records the person verifying the request asks for, for example a death certificate, letters testamentary, a court order or identification. The Member's attorney, or Willow where no attorney is connected, decides what is needed.
- (f) Communications: messages you send us or send through the Services, support requests and feedback.
- (g) Check-ins, surveys and life updates: your answers to check-ins, surveys and life-update questions in the Services, for example about a marriage, a birth, a move or a change in health. If your account is connected to a Firm, the Firm sees your answers so that it can tell whether your plan needs updating. These answers can include sensitive information (Section 2.2).
- (h) Website forms and demonstrations: the information you enter when you sign up for updates or early access (such as our Founding 100 program), submit our investor interest or contact forms, or book a demonstration, such as your name, email address, firm or organization and message. We schedule demonstrations through Cal.com, which receives the details you enter to book.

2.2 Sensitive information. Estate planning content, supporting files, and answers to check-ins and surveys often contain sensitive personal information, including health information, financial account information, government identifiers, information about minors, and information about a person's death or incapacity. We collect and use sensitive information only to provide the Services you or your Firm have requested, as described in this policy, and never to market to you, to profile you or to make automated decisions about you. When you create a Willow account, we ask for your consent to our handling of this kind of information, separately from your acceptance of the Member Terms. Handling it is also necessary to provide the Services you have asked for: an estate plan cannot be stored, summarized or shared without the health, financial and identifying information it contains. You may withdraw your consent at any time by emailing support@willow-inc.com. We will confirm the request with you, explain what it means and give you the chance to download your documents first, because we cannot keep your estate plan in Willow without this information: withdrawing consent for particular information means we remove it from your account and stop using it, and withdrawing it altogether means closing your account. We act within 15 days after we receive your request. We keep only what the law requires us to keep and the records described in Section 6, and a Firm's own record of you as its client stays with the Firm (Section 5.1). You can also delete files you uploaded yourself at any time in the Services. Where a Firm uploads documents for its clients, the Firm obtains any consent its professional obligations require, and we also ask each Member for their own consent when they create their account. Health information is also covered by our Consumer Health Data Notice, which is published alongside this policy: Consumer Health Data Notice

2.3 Information from Firms. A Firm may create a Member account, upload documents and enter information about its clients and their families. When a Firm uploads a document, the Services may also identify the people named in it and use that information to set up a client record for the Firm, which can happen before the client has a Willow account (Section 4.2). That information is Firm Customer Data (Section 1.3).

2.4 Information from connected accounts. If an Attorney or Authorized User connects a Google, Microsoft or Zoom account, we receive the limited information described in Section 3.

2.5 Payment information. Payments are processed by Stripe, Inc. We do not receive or store full card numbers. Stripe gives us limited payment details, such as the type of payment method, the card brand and last four digits, the billing name and address, and a record of each transaction.

2.6 Information collected automatically.

- (a) Device and log data: IP address, browser type, operating system, pages visited, date and time of access, and security and error logs, which we use to operate and protect the Services.
- (b) In the Willow apps: we use Vercel Web Analytics and Speed Insights, which measure page views and performance in aggregate without using advertising identifiers or cross-site tracking cookies. We use only cookies and local storage that are strictly necessary to sign you in, keep your session secure, remember a trusted device for multi-factor authentication, and remember basic preferences.
- (c) On our marketing website: willow-inc.com uses Google Analytics and Microsoft Clarity as optional analytics. They run only after you accept them; declining is just as easy, and until you choose, they do not run. You can change your choice at any time through the cookie settings link in the footer of our website, and if you reject after accepting, the tools stop and the analytics cookies they set on our site are removed. Google Analytics records the pages you view, how far you scroll, the links and buttons you click, outbound links and file downloads, and details about your device and browser. Microsoft Clarity records how you interact with our pages, such as clicks, scrolling and other page interactions, together with the content of our pages as shown to you, to produce session recordings and heatmaps; anything you type into a form is masked before it is recorded. Before either tool loads, we remove everything from the page address except the page, campaign tags and the site's own settings, so personal details in a link do not reach Google or Microsoft. We use this information only to understand how the website is used and to improve it, and it is kept for up to 14 months. We tell both tools that advertising storage is denied: we do not use Google signals, ad personalization, remarketing or advertising tags, no advertising account is linked, and we do not use these tools, or anything else, to advertise to you. When they run, they set their own cookies, and Google and Microsoft process the information as our service providers under their own terms, except that Clarity also sets Microsoft's MUID cookie, which Microsoft may use to recognize your browser across Microsoft's own services under Microsoft's privacy statement. If you prefer that this not happen, decline analytics.

- (d) Advertising cookies, Do Not Track and Global Privacy Control: we do not use advertising cookies, targeted advertising or cross-context behavioral advertising anywhere, in the Willow apps or on our marketing website, and we do not use our website analytics for advertising. We do not respond to browser "Do Not Track" signals, because there is no common standard for them, but we honor Global Privacy Control signals, in the Willow apps and on our marketing website, as described in Section 8.
- (e) Email interactions and our email log: service emails may include links that let us confirm a document was delivered or a link was opened, so that we can tell a Member or Firm that a shared document was received. We keep a log of each email Willow sends, whether to a Member or on a Firm's behalf, showing the recipient, subject, type of email, time sent, whether it was delivered and the names of any attachments, but never the body of the email. A Firm can see the log of emails Willow sent on its behalf.
- (f) Investor page: the investor page on our website uses KoreConX, an investment platform, to take investor sign-ups for Willow's offering. KoreConX receives the information an investor enters and the visitor's device and browser details, and handles them under KoreConX's own privacy policy.

2.7 Business contact information. We keep business contact details, such as name, firm, role, business email address and telephone number, of attorneys and law firms we contact about Willow. We collect them from public sources and business contact databases, or from the person directly. We use them only to tell those people about Willow, and anyone can ask us to stop contacting them or to delete their details (Section 8).

3. Connected Services

> Summary: You can choose to connect other apps and accounts to Willow, such as your calendar, contacts, email, video meetings or practice management software. We access only what each connection needs for the features you turn on, never use that data for advertising, send it to our AI provider or use it to train AI, and you can disconnect at any time. Our website lists the connections we currently offer and what each one accesses.

3.1 How connections work. A "Connected Service" is any third-party application, account or data source that you choose to connect to Willow, such as a calendar, email, video conferencing, practice management, document management, database or productivity service. The following rules apply to every Connected Service:

- (a) Your choice. Connections are optional. A Connected Service is connected only when you choose to connect it and grant permission on that provider's own authorization screen, and only the features you turn on use it.
- (b) What we access. We access, retrieve and send only the data needed for the features you enable, within the permissions you grant. Depending on the connection, this may include account identifiers, contacts, calendar availability and events, meeting details, email message details such as sender, recipients, subject and date, client and matter records, documents, and other records you choose to import or export. If a provider grants Willow broader access than a feature needs, for example permission to read the full contents of a mailbox, we do not use it, and we ask you to reconnect with only the permissions the feature needs.

- (c) How we use it. We use data from a Connected Service only to provide and improve the features you use, and never for advertising, to sell it, or to train or improve any artificial intelligence model. We do not send calendar, email or meeting data from a Connected Service to our AI provider.
- (d) Data you send out. When you direct Willow to send information to a Connected Service, that provider receives it under its own terms and privacy policy, which we do not control.
- (e) What we keep. We store access credentials (tokens) for as long as the connection is active, and data you import into Willow becomes part of your account. We do not keep a separate copy of a Connected Service's data beyond what a feature needs.
- (f) Disconnecting. You can disconnect any Connected Service at any time in your connection settings in the Services, by contacting us, or through the provider. When you disconnect through Willow, we stop accessing the Connected Service, delete the stored credentials and, where the provider allows it, ask the provider to cancel Willow's access. If you remove Willow's access through the provider instead, or the connection expires, Willow can no longer access it; we delete the stored credentials once we learn of it, keep your settings, and ask you to reconnect if you want to use the feature again. Data already imported into Willow stays in your account until you delete it.
- (g) Current connections. We list the Connected Services we offer, and what each one accesses, on our website and when you connect it. We may add, change or retire connections over time. Where a provider requires specific disclosures in this policy, they appear below.

At present, only Attorneys and Authorized Users can connect a third-party account. If we offer connections to Members in the future, this Section 3 will apply to them in the same way.

3.2 Google user data. If you connect a Google account, Willow requests only the following permissions, and uses the data only as described. Willow does not request any Gmail permission and does not read Gmail:

| Google permission | What Willow does with it | What Willow stores |
|---|---|---|
| Email address (email) | Identifies which Google account is connected, and shows it to you in the Services | The connected account's email address |

| Google permission | What Willow does with it | What Willow stores |
|---|---|---|
| Google Calendar: see and download any calendar you can access using your Google Calendar (calendar.readonly) | Checks when you are free or busy, so your booking page offers only open times. When you add a new client, searches the titles and guest lists of your calendar events from up to the last three years for that client's name, to suggest the email address used on those invitations | Nothing from your calendars, other than a suggested email address if you choose to save it to a client record |
| Google Calendar: view and edit events on all your calendars (calendar.events) | Adds consultations booked through your Willow booking page to your calendar, with the client as a guest and a Google Meet link if you choose one | The ID of each event Willow created, so it can update or cancel that event |
| Google Contacts: see and download contact info automatically saved in your "Other contacts" (contacts.other.readonly) | When you add a new client, searches the people you have emailed (your "Other contacts") for that client's name, to suggest their email address and phone number. Suggestions are shown only to you | Only an email address or phone number you choose to save to a client record |

3.3 Limited Use. Willow's use and transfer to any other app of information received from Google APIs will adhere to the Google API Services User Data Policy, including the Limited Use requirements. The use of information received from Google Workspace APIs will adhere to the Google Workspace API User Data and Developer Policy, including the Limited Use requirements. In particular:

- (a) we use Google user data only to provide and improve the user-facing features described in Section 3.2, which are visible in the Services;
- (b) we do not transfer Google user data to others, except as necessary to provide those features, to comply with applicable law, for security purposes, or as part of a merger, acquisition or sale of assets with your prior consent;
- (c) we do not use or transfer Google user data for serving advertisements, including retargeting, personalized or interest-based advertising;
- (d) we do not sell Google user data, or transfer it to data brokers or information resellers, or use it to determine credit-worthiness or for lending purposes;
- (e) no person at Willow reads Google user data unless you give us affirmative permission for specific data (for example, in a support request), it is necessary for security purposes such as investigating abuse, it is required to comply with law, or the data has been aggregated and anonymized for internal operations; and
- (f) we do not use Google user data to develop, train or improve any artificial intelligence or machine learning model, and we do not send Google user data to Anthropic or any other AI provider.

3.4 Microsoft data. If you connect a Microsoft 365 or Outlook account, Willow requests permission to sign you in and read your basic profile (User.Read, openid, email), to keep the connection active (offline_access), to read basic details of your email messages (Mail.ReadBasic), and to read the list of people you work and email with (People.Read), which includes your Outlook contacts. If you also connect your Outlook calendar, which is a separate connection, Willow requests permission to read and write your calendars (Calendars.ReadWrite). Willow uses these permissions only to:

- (a) check your free and busy times for your booking page, and add consultations booked through Willow to your calendar, with a Microsoft Teams meeting link if you choose one;
- (b) show you, on a client's record in Willow, your email correspondence with that client from the last year. For this, Willow reads only the sender, recipients, subject and date of your Outlook messages, live from Microsoft each time you view them; and
- (c) when you add a client, find their contact details: Willow searches the people you email most, and, from up to the last three years, the titles and guest lists of your calendar events and the sender, recipients and subject lines of your email messages, for the client's name, and suggests an email address and, where Outlook has one, a phone number. It never reads the contents of your email. Suggestions are shown only to you, and nothing is stored unless you save them to the client record.

Willow never reads the body or attachments of your email messages, and the Mail.ReadBasic permission does not allow it. If a Microsoft account is connected with a broader permission than those listed, such as Mail.Read, Willow does not use it and asks you to reconnect with the permissions listed. The message and calendar details described in (b) and (c) are read live and never stored. Willow stores only the connection tokens, the connected account's email address, the IDs of events it created, and the contact details you choose to save to a client record. Willow does not use Microsoft data for advertising or marketing, does not send it to any AI provider, and does not use it to train any AI model.

3.5 Zoom data. If you connect a Zoom account, Willow requests permission to read your basic Zoom user profile (user:read) and to create meetings (meeting:write). Willow uses them only to create a Zoom meeting link for a consultation booked through Willow. Willow stores your Zoom user ID, your Zoom account email and the join link of each meeting it creates, and never reads your Zoom meetings or recordings. If you remove Willow inside your Zoom account, Zoom tells us, and we delete your stored Zoom sign-in and switch the Zoom connection off in Willow. Your availability comes only from the calendars you have connected; a Zoom meeting affects it only if it appears on one of those calendars.

3.6 Storage and security. Sign-in credentials (access and refresh tokens) for connected accounts are kept in restricted storage that only Willow's servers can read, encrypted at rest by our database provider, and are used only to perform the features above. Data from connected accounts is processed in the United States.

3.7 Disconnecting. You can disconnect Google, Microsoft or Zoom at any time in your connection settings in the Services or by contacting us. When you do, Willow stops accessing the account, deletes the stored sign-in and, for Google and Zoom, asks the provider to cancel Willow's access. Microsoft does not let apps do this, so we tell you how to remove Willow from your Microsoft account yourself. You can also remove Willow's access directly in your Google Account permissions, Microsoft account settings or the Zoom App Marketplace. If a connection expires or is revoked, Willow deletes the stored sign-in, keeps your settings and asks you to reconnect. Events Willow already added to your calendar, and contact details you saved to a client record, stay where they are until you delete them.

3.8 New connections. Adding a Connected Service that follows Section 3.1 does not change this policy; we update the list on our website, and you consent when you choose to connect it. If we want to use data from a Connected Service in a way not described in this Section 3, we will update this policy and ask for your consent first.

4. How We Use Information

> Summary: We use information to run the Services, keep them secure, verify people before releasing documents, bill for the Services, communicate with you and meet legal obligations. We use AI only to analyze documents an attorney uploads or manages and to prepare drafts for the attorney's review, and no AI model is trained on your documents. We do not sell your information or use it for advertising.

4.1 Purposes. We use personal information to:

- (a) create and administer accounts, authenticate users and provide the features requested;
- (b) store, organize, display and share documents according to a Member's instructions, a Firm's instructions and the Access Instructions;
- (c) analyze documents and supporting files an Attorney uploads or manages, to classify them, identify the people and key terms in them, set up client records and prepare draft summaries for the Attorney's review (Section 4.2);
- (d) verify requests to release documents, as the Member's attorney or Willow decides is needed, and notify the Firms and people involved as the release process requires;
- (e) schedule consultations, show attorney availability, create calendar events and video meeting links, help Attorneys fill in a client's contact details, and show Attorneys their email correspondence with a client (Section 3);
- (f) bill for the Services, process payments, send receipts and renewal notices, and manage subscriptions;
- (g) send service communications, such as security alerts, renewal reminders, plan-review reminders, and messages, check-ins and surveys that a Firm sends to its clients through the Services;
- (h) provide support and respond to requests;

- (i) monitor, secure and improve the reliability and performance of the Services, and detect, prevent and investigate fraud, abuse and security incidents;
- (j) comply with law, legal process and professional obligations, and establish, exercise or defend legal claims;
- (k) communicate with attorneys, law firms and others about Willow, including people who sign up for updates, submit a form or book a demonstration on our website, and the business contacts described in Section 2.7; and
- (l) carry out any other purpose disclosed to you at the time of collection, with your consent where required.

4.2 Artificial intelligence. Willow uses a large language model provided by Anthropic, PBC to analyze estate planning documents and supporting files that an Attorney uploads or manages: to classify them, identify the people and key terms in them, and prepare draft summaries for the Attorney's review. For example, when an Attorney uploads a document, the Services may identify the type of document, the people who made it, their spouse and their address, and use that information to set up a client record for the Attorney, which can happen before the client has a Willow account. The Services may also identify trust terms, describe "what-if" scenarios and summarize individual sections. These results are drafts for the Attorney's review and are not legal advice, and a Member sees an AI summary only after the Attorney approves it and only while the Member has an active plan. Specifically:

- (a) we send the uploaded document to Anthropic through its commercial API, under terms that prohibit Anthropic from using that content to train its models;
- (b) Willow does not train or fine-tune any AI model on Member documents, summaries or Firm Customer Data;
- (c) Willow improves its document analysis by refining its own library of instructions and summary components, which may be informed by the kinds of edits Attorneys make, but which do not contain the content of any Member's documents;
- (d) documents in accounts that have no Attorney are not analyzed with AI; and
- (e) Anthropic processes document content only to return the results of the analysis to Willow, under contract terms that require it to keep the content confidential. Any temporary retention by Anthropic, for example to monitor for misuse or to comply with law, is governed by those terms. We describe our current configuration on our subprocessor page.

4.3 Aggregated and de-identified information. We may create aggregated or de-identified information that cannot reasonably be linked to any individual or Firm, and use it to understand and improve the Services. We will not attempt to re-identify it.

4.4 What we do not do. We do not sell personal information, share it for cross-context behavioral advertising, use it for targeted advertising or use it to build advertising profiles, anywhere. We do not use estate planning content, Firm Customer Data or data from Connected Services for marketing. We do not use personal information to make automated decisions that have legal or similarly significant effects on you.

5. How We Share Information

> Summary: We share information with your Firm, with the people you choose, with Fiduciaries whose requests have been verified under your Access Instructions (by your attorney, or by Willow if you have none), and with vendors who help us run the Services under written confidentiality obligations. We disclose information for legal reasons only when we believe the law requires it or it is necessary to protect someone's safety, address fraud or security, or protect Willow's rights, and we tell you first where we can. We do not sell personal information.

5.1 With your Firm and Attorney. If a Member's account is connected to a Firm, the Firm's Attorneys and Authorized Users can access that Member's documents, summaries, answers to check-ins and surveys, and account activity as needed to provide legal services, but not files the Member uploads themselves or personal contacts the Member has not chosen to share with the Firm. If the connection ends, for example because the Member disconnects or the Firm stops using Willow, the Firm can no longer see the Member's account, including anything added afterwards, although the Firm keeps its own record of the Member as a former client, as attorneys are required to do: the Member's contact details, the documents and approved summaries that were in the Member's account (including any from an earlier Firm), the Member's team and, if the Member shared them, contacts, the Firm's own notes, and the messages, check-ins and surveys the Firm sent. Willow holds that record for the Firm as part of the Firm's client file, and requests about it go to the Firm (Section 12.2). A Member is connected to one Firm at a time. If the Member later accepts a new Firm, that Firm sees the Member's whole account, including documents and summaries from an earlier Firm, because the Member's acceptance is their direction to share it. The Member Terms describe what else happens when a connection ends.

5.2 With people you choose. When a Member shares a document or a section of information, we show it to the people the Member chose, and to no one else. When a Firm directs us to share its data, we follow the Firm's instructions. If an Attorney links two Members' accounts as a couple, linking does not by itself share their documents: each sees the other's name, email address and whether they are connected to a Firm, and one couples Plan covers both; a document the Attorney identifies as joint is placed in both accounts; anything else is shared only if that Member chooses to share it. People you share with never pay to see what you shared with them (a release request for an account whose plan has lapsed may carry a reasonable fee, shown before the request is submitted, as the Member Terms describe), and they accept the Recipient Terms before their first access.

5.3 With Fiduciaries under Access Instructions. Members choose, document by document and section by section, who may see what. Powers of attorney and health care documents are shared with the named agents when the Member chooses to share them. A will may be shared so that it stays locked until the Member's death, and is unlocked only after a request is verified by the Member's attorney of record, under the attorney's own procedures, or, where there is none, by Willow. Requesters provide the proof the verifier asks for, which may include proof of identity and of the death or other release event. A Member may also choose other release events if Willow offers them, and those releases are verified in the same way. Willow does not make legal or medical determinations, such as whether a Member has capacity. We may also release documents to a court-appointed personal representative on presentation of letters or a court order. A Member's sharing choices ("Access Instructions") are given through a tool the Member can change at any time, and serve as the Member's direction to Willow under the law of the Member's state on fiduciary access to digital assets. We keep a record of every release.

5.4 With service providers. We share information with vendors that host, secure and operate the Services on our behalf, and only as needed for those services. Each is bound by written obligations to protect the information, keep it confidential and use it only to provide services to Willow. Our principal service providers currently include the following. Our subprocessor page at willow-inc.com/subprocessors is the current, authoritative list:

| Provider | Service | Data location |
|---|---|---|
| Supabase, Inc. (on Amazon Web Services) | Database, file storage, authentication | United States |
| Vercel, Inc. | Application hosting, web analytics | United States |
| Anthropic, PBC | AI document analysis and draft summaries | United States |
| Stripe, Inc. | Payment processing. Willow does not receive or store full card numbers | United States |
| Google LLC (Google Maps Platform) | Address autocomplete | United States and other locations where Google operates |
| Google LLC (Google Workspace) | Email delivery | United States and other locations where Google operates |
| Google LLC (Google Analytics) | Marketing website analytics, only with the visitor's consent and with advertising storage denied | United States and other locations where Google operates |
| Microsoft Corporation (Microsoft Clarity) | Marketing website analytics and session recordings, only with the visitor's consent and with advertising storage denied | United States and other locations where Microsoft operates |
| Cal.com, Inc. | Scheduling demonstrations booked on our marketing website | United States |

We keep a current list of service providers at willow-inc.com/subprocessors and update it no later than the day a new provider begins processing Firm Customer Data. If this table and that page differ, the page controls. The page identifies which providers process Firm Customer Data; providers used only on our marketing website do not. Adding or changing a service provider does not change this policy. Connected Services that you choose to connect, such as your own Google, Microsoft or Zoom account, are not our service providers, even where the same company also provides services to Willow; they are covered by Section 3.

5.5 For legal reasons. We disclose information if we believe in good faith that disclosure is required by law, subpoena, court order or other legal process, or is necessary to protect the safety of any person, to address fraud or security issues, or to protect Willow's rights. Unless legally prohibited, we notify the affected Member or Firm before disclosing their information in response to legal process, so they can seek to limit it. Reimbursement of costs for responding to legal process is addressed in the Member Terms and the Firm Subscription Agreement.

5.6 Business transfers. If Willow is involved in a merger, acquisition, financing, reorganization, bankruptcy or sale of assets, information may be transferred as part of that transaction. Any successor will be required to protect the information under terms at least as protective as this policy, including the commitments in Section 3, and we will notify you before your information becomes subject to a different privacy policy.

5.7 With Connected Services and with consent. We share information with a Connected Service when you direct us to, as described in Section 3, and in other ways when you direct or consent to it.

5.8 No sale or targeted advertising. We do not sell personal information, and we do not share it for cross-context behavioral advertising or use it for targeted advertising, anywhere, including on our marketing website. The optional analytics on our marketing website run only with your consent and with advertising storage denied (Section 2.6(c)). A Global Privacy Control signal is honored as an opt-out and, unless you choose otherwise, declines those analytics (Section 8.7).

5.9 Attorney suggestions for Members without an attorney. If your Member Account has no attorney connected, we may show you attorneys who use Willow near you, so that you can get legal advice if you want it. These suggestions are based only on your state or location and the attorney's practice area and availability. No attorney or firm pays to be shown, we do not rank or recommend attorneys, we receive no part of any fee you pay an attorney, and showing you an attorney is not legal advice. We do not share your documents or account information with an attorney unless you choose to connect with them. While your account is connected to a Firm, we do not show you other attorneys.

6. Retention and Deletion

> Summary: We keep your information while your account is active and for set periods afterwards, so that your Fiduciaries can still get your documents when they need them. We do not delete a lapsed account, or the account of a Member who has died, without giving notice first. When you disconnect a connected account, we stop accessing it and delete the stored access credentials.

6.1 General rule. We retain personal information for as long as needed to provide the Services and for the purposes in this policy, and then delete or de-identify it. The periods below apply unless a longer period is required by law, needed to resolve a dispute or enforce our agreements, or subject to a legal hold.

|---|---|
| Active account information and documents | While the account is active |
| Account closed by the Member | Deleted after closure, generally within 90 days |
| Plan not renewed (lapsed account) | Documents kept and downloadable, with no new uploads or shares; existing shares keep working for 90 days. 90 days after the plan lapses, sharing is turned off, except a will shared with the executor, a financial power of attorney shared with the financial agent, and health care documents shared with the health care agent; the turned-off shares are recorded, not deleted, and the Member is emailed. If the Member starts a new plan, we offer once to resume those shares and share nothing until the Member accepts. Not deleted automatically; deleted only after advance notice to the Member |
| Account of a Member whose death has been verified | Kept for at least 24 months after verification so Fiduciaries can request documents, then deleted after notice to the executor of record |
| Firm Customer Data after a Firm's subscription ends | Deleted as set out in the Firm's Data Processing Addendum, generally within 90 days after the Firm's 30-day export period, with backups expiring in the normal course. A Member's own account and copies of their documents are not affected |
| A Firm's record of you as a former client (Section 5.1) | Kept for the Firm, as part of its client file, for as long as the Firm subscribes to Willow or until the Firm deletes it; after the Firm's subscription ends, deleted with the Firm's other data under the Data Processing Addendum |
| Booking requests from prospective clients | Generally up to 24 months from the last activity, unless the person becomes a Member |
| Release-request records and proof (the request, and the records and identification provided) | 2 years after the request is resolved, in case the release is questioned |
| Release and access logs | Generally up to 7 years, to document who received which document and when |
| Billing and tax records | As required by tax and accounting law, generally 7 years |

| Information | Retention period |
|---|---|
| Records of your acceptance of terms and consents (what you agreed to, the date, your IP address and browser type) | For as long as your account exists, and 7 years afterwards |
| OAuth tokens for connected Google, Microsoft and Zoom accounts | Until the connection is disconnected, revoked or expired, or the user's Willow account is closed |
| Security and error logs | For a limited period, as needed for security and troubleshooting |
| Marketing website analytics data (Google Analytics and Microsoft Clarity), collected only with your consent | Up to 14 months |

6.2 Backups. Deleted information may remain in encrypted backups for a limited period until those backups are overwritten. It is not used or restored for any other purpose in that time.

6.3 Copies held by Firms and recipients. Deleting something from Willow does not delete copies that people have already downloaded, such as a Firm's own copy of your file or a document that a recipient saved.

6.4 Your originals. Willow stores copies of documents. Willow is not a depository for original wills and does not file or deposit wills with any court. Keep your signed originals in a safe place, and note their location in your account.

7. Security

> Summary: We protect your information with encryption, access controls, multi-factor authentication and access logging. No system is perfectly secure, so if a breach affects your information, we will tell you as the law requires.

7.1 Safeguards. We maintain administrative, technical and physical safeguards designed to protect personal information against unauthorized access, use, alteration and loss, appropriate to the sensitivity of estate planning content. These include:

- (a) encryption of data in transit using TLS and encryption of stored data at rest;
- (b) access controls that limit each user to the accounts and documents they are permitted to see, enforced at the database level;
- (c) multi-factor authentication for account sign-in;

- (d) storage of OAuth tokens for connected accounts in restricted systems that only server-side services can read;
- (e) access to production systems limited to authorized Willow personnel who need it for their role and who are bound by written confidentiality obligations;
- (f) logging of document access and releases; and
- (g) written confidentiality and security obligations for our service providers.

7.2 No guarantee. No method of transmission or storage is completely secure. We cannot guarantee the security of information, and we are not responsible for unauthorized access caused by the criminal acts of third parties where we have maintained reasonable safeguards.

7.3 Your part. Keep your password confidential, use multi-factor authentication, and tell us promptly at support@willow-inc.com if you suspect unauthorized access to your account. We recommend that you do not store passwords, PINs, security answers, full financial account numbers, or cryptocurrency private keys or seed phrases in Willow. If you choose to store them, you do so at your own risk.

7.4 Breach notification. If we discover a security breach affecting your personal information, we will notify affected individuals and regulators as required by the data breach notification law of your state and any other applicable law, and Firms as provided in their Data Processing Addendum.

7.5 HIPAA. Willow is not a covered entity under HIPAA. Unless Willow has signed a business associate agreement with you, HIPAA does not apply to information you store in Willow. We protect health information as described in this policy and in our Consumer Health Data Notice: Consumer Health Data Notice

8. Your Choices and Rights

> Summary: Wherever you live, you can ask to see, correct, download or delete your information, and you can appeal if we say no. If your Firm manages your information, we will work with the Firm to respond. We will never treat you differently for using these rights.

8.1 Rights for all users. Regardless of where you live, and subject to the exceptions in Section 8.4, you may ask us to:

- (a) access the personal information we hold about you and receive a copy in a portable format;
- (b) correct inaccurate information;
- (c) delete your information;
- (d) withdraw consent you previously gave, such as to a connected account, to marketing emails or to our handling of sensitive information (Section 2.2 explains what withdrawing that consent means); and
- (e) opt out of any sale of personal information, targeted advertising or profiling with legal or similarly significant effects, although we do not engage in these activities.

Members can download their documents and change their Access Instructions at any time through the Services, and can contact us for help.

8.2 Making a request. Make your request by emailing support@willow-inc.com. We will verify your identity before acting on a request, usually by confirming control of your account or email address, and may ask for more information for requests involving sensitive documents. We respond within 45 days, and will tell you if we need up to 45 more days. There is no charge unless a request is manifestly unfounded or excessive.

8.3 Authorized agents and fiduciaries. You may use an authorized agent to make a request. We will require written authorization signed by you, or a valid power of attorney, and may confirm the request with you directly. After a Member's death, requests about the Member's information may be made by the executor or personal representative, as described in the Member Terms and Section 5.3.

8.4 Exceptions. We may decline or limit a request where the law permits, including where we must keep information to comply with law or a legal hold, to complete a transaction, to protect security, or to establish or defend legal claims, or where fulfilling it would reveal another person's personal information. For Firm Customer Data, we will forward your request to the Firm and act on the Firm's instructions, because the Firm controls that information and may have professional obligations to retain its client files. Deleting a Member account does not delete copies held by the Firm.

8.5 Appeals. If we decline your request, you may appeal by replying to our decision or emailing support@willow-inc.com with "Appeal" in the subject line. We will respond in writing within 45 days and explain our reasons. If you are not satisfied, you may contact your state attorney general.

8.6 No discrimination. We will not deny you the Services, charge a different price or provide a different quality of service because you exercised a privacy right.

8.7 Global Privacy Control. We treat a Global Privacy Control signal from your browser as a valid request to opt out of the sale of personal information and of targeted advertising for that browser, in the Willow apps and on our marketing website, although we do neither. On our marketing website, if your browser sends the signal and you have not made a choice about analytics, we treat the signal as declining them. If you then accept analytics yourself, we follow your choice.

8.8 Communications choices. You can turn off marketing emails and other non-essential emails through the Services, by contacting us, or by following the opt-out instructions in the email. We will still send messages needed to operate your account, such as security alerts, receipts, renewal reminders, plan-review reminders and notices about release requests. Messages a Firm sends you through Willow, such as check-ins and newsletters, follow the Firm's settings.

8.9 State-specific information. Some U.S. state laws give residents specific rights and require specific disclosures. This policy is designed to provide those rights to all users. The categories of information we collect, where it comes from and why we use it are listed in Sections 2 and 4, and the people we share it with are listed in Section 5. We use sensitive personal information only as necessary to provide the Services you request.

8.10 Outside the United States. Willow personnel outside the United States may access personal information remotely to provide and support the Services, under the safeguards described in Sections 7 and 10. You may make access and correction requests, or raise concerns about our practices, with our privacy contact at support@willow-inc.com. If you live outside the United States, you may also have the right to complain to your local privacy regulator.

9. Children's Information

> Summary: Willow accounts are for adults. Plans often name children, and we protect that information like the rest of a Member's plan.

9.1 The Services are not directed to children, and we do not knowingly allow anyone under 18 to create an account. Members and Firms may store information about minors, such as children named as beneficiaries or wards, as part of an estate plan. We use that information only to provide the Services to the Member or Firm and never to contact or market to a minor. If we have reason to believe that a person under 18 has created an account, we will verify the person's age and, if they are under 18, close the account and delete the associated information.

10. Where Information Is Processed

> Summary: Your information is stored in the United States. Some members of our team work outside the United States and may access it remotely under the same protections, and some service providers may process it in other countries.

10.1 We store personal information on servers in the United States. Authorized Willow personnel may access it remotely from other countries to provide and support the Services, subject to the safeguards in Section 7, and never from a country to which United States law restricts the transfer of sensitive personal data. Some of our service providers may also process information in other countries, as listed in Section 5.4 and on our subprocessor page. Information accessed or held in another country may be subject to the laws of that country, including lawful requests from its courts and authorities.

11. Changes to This Policy

> Summary: If we make an important change, we will tell you at least 7 days before it takes effect, unless the law or a security need requires a faster change. We will never use information we already hold in a materially different way without your consent.

11.1 Updates. We may update this policy to reflect changes in the Services, our practices or the law. The current version will always be available at willow-inc.com/privacy, with its effective date. Earlier versions are available on request.

11.2 Notice of material changes. If we make a material change, we will notify Members and Firms by email and by notice in the Services at least 7 days before the change takes effect, or sooner where the law requires it or for security reasons.

11.3 Consent for new uses. We will not use personal information collected under an earlier version of this policy, including data received from Google, Microsoft or Zoom, for a purpose that is materially different from what we disclosed when we collected it, unless we first obtain your consent.

12. Contact Us

> Summary: Email support@willow-inc.com with any question or request.

12.1 For questions about this policy or to exercise your rights, contact:

- Willow (07042002 Inc.), Attn: Privacy contact
- Privacy requests, questions and security reports: support@willow-inc.com

12.2 If your question concerns information a Firm manages about you, we may refer it to that Firm, and we will help the Firm respond.
