WILLOW

Willow Recipient Terms

07042002 Inc. d/b/a Willow · Version of November 13, 2026

Summary: Someone has shared estate planning documents with you through Willow, or you have asked for documents as an executor, agent or other fiduciary. These short terms apply when you access them. Use the documents only for your role, keep them confidential, and remember they are copies.

These Recipient Terms are an agreement between you and 07042002 Inc., a Delaware corporation doing business as Willow ("Willow"). They apply when you access documents or information shared with you through Willow, or when you request documents as an executor, personal representative, trustee, agent, health care agent or other fiduciary (together, "Shared Documents"). You accept them by clicking to agree before your first access. Capitalized terms not defined here have the meanings in the Willow Member Terms.

1. Your access

1.1 Willow gives you access to Shared Documents because the Member who owns them chose to share them with you, or because you made a release request that was verified under the Member Terms. Your access is personal to you and may be limited to particular documents. The Member may change or end it at any time. Where a document is locked until a release, the Member's Attorney, or Willow if the Member has no Attorney, decides whether to grant or deny the release, and may lock the document again after it has been released, for example if the release was made in error. The Attorney cannot change the Member's sharing choices. Willow may suspend your access if it reasonably believes your access is being misused or was granted in error.

1.2 You confirm that the information you give Willow, including about your identity and your role, is true and complete. Making a false request or impersonating someone else is prohibited and may be reported to the authorities.

2. How you may use Shared Documents

2.1 Use Shared Documents only to carry out your role for the Member or the Member's estate, or for the purpose for which they were shared with you. Keep them confidential and do not share them further, except as your role or the law requires.

2.2 Shared Documents are copies. Willow does not hold originals, does not certify copies as true copies, and makes no statement about whether any document is valid, current or effective, or whether a court, bank, hospital or other institution will accept a copy. Whoever holds an original will remains responsible for filing or depositing it as the law requires.

2.3 Willow is not a law firm and does not give legal advice. Accessing Shared Documents does not create an attorney-client relationship with Willow or with the Member's Attorney.

3. Fees

Some requests, such as a search request or a release request for an account without an active plan, may carry a reasonable fee, which Willow sets and may change from time to time. Any fee is shown before you submit the request.

4. Privacy

Willow handles information about you as described in its Privacy Policy, including the identification and supporting records you provide for a release request.

5. Disclaimers and limits

To the fullest extent permitted by law, Shared Documents and the Services are provided "as is," Willow disclaims all warranties, and Willow is not liable for any indirect, incidental or consequential damages. Willow's total liability to you, for all claims together, will not exceed the greater of the amounts you paid Willow in the previous 12 months and US$200. Willow follows the Member's instructions and the release process in the Member Terms, and to the fullest extent permitted by law is not liable for a release, delay or refusal made in good faith under that process. These limits apply only to the extent the law allows, and nothing in these Recipient Terms limits liability that the law does not allow to be limited.

6. Disputes

Any dispute between you and Willow arising out of or relating to these Recipient Terms or your access to Shared Documents will be resolved under Section 9 of the Member Terms (informal resolution, then individual arbitration, with no class actions and with the same exceptions, including small claims court and probate and guardianship proceedings), which is incorporated here and applies to you as if you were the Member. You may opt out of arbitration within 30 days after you first accept these Recipient Terms, as described in that Section.

7. General

These Recipient Terms are governed by the laws of the State of Delaware, subject to Section 9 of the Member Terms. Willow may update them by posting a new version; material changes will be presented for your acceptance before your next access. If any provision is unenforceable, the rest remains in effect. Questions can be sent to support@willow-inc.com or through the contact options on Willow's website.